North Carolina and the Great War: 1914 to the Present

This course will trace the participation of North Carolinians, male and female, white and black, in World War One and the subsequent efforts to commemorate the war and those who served in it. Although we will discuss the course of the conflict, this class is not devoted to military history. The focus will be on the social, political, and cultural history of the conflict and its aftermath. Students will conduct research and contribute content to an online digital archive devoted to commemorative sites in North Carolina.
